City officials call for end of conflict, loan schools $350,000

By BRENDA HEATHCOCK

In an effort to resolve a conflict between the Bay St. Louis City Council and the Municipal School District Trustees, the council Tuesday adopted a resolution seeking "harmony and a positive working relationship.

The school board was expected to take similiar action Wednesday

Newly elected Council President Lisa Cowand presented the resolution as a tool to end a conflict between city and school officials over funding for kindergarten classrooms.

The school board voted last week to sue the city for $350,000 to be derived from a short-term loan which had been targeted to fund construction of a new classroom

When the school board decided to purchase trailers, city officials refused to turn over the funds quoting state statutes which prohibit them for doing so.

The resolution passed Tuesday offers a loan of the same amount to "obtain facilities, deemed appropriate by the Board of Trustees, for the purpose of creating permanent housing for its kindergarten program."

When asked if the resolution contained wording that would prevent the purchase of trailers, Cowand said modular units were not mentioned but that the resolution did specify permanent housing.

an Carron asked the board that if the school board used the money for trailers, did the city intend to sue for misuse of funds?

Cowand told the group attending the meeting that she did not believe the purchase of trailers would materalize and that this should be public knowledge within the next 24

Councilman John Wilkerson at this point requested that there be no further questions to the council regarding the resolution and asked that the everyone just "trust the city council."

Nearly one-half of the resolution addressed the proposed lawsuit. stating both the city and the school system can "utilize their respective. energies and tax monies in activities much more worthwhile than those of litigation."

It further stated "the concept of one agency of the peoples' government suing another of the same domain is, at best, questionable, and allowing a situation which precipitates "litigious action of one arm on the government against another is objectionable to reasonable people."

Most importantly, according to the resolution, "the members of the City Council and Mayor refuse to hold hostage the educational future of its youngest citizens."

It was passed unamiously. Mayor Victor Franckiewicz Jr. said he belived the resolution is a gesture of good faith on the part of the council.

He believes city officials want to do their best to "work with, not against" the school board to get the matter resolved.

"It is not good for the school board and the council to be in contention and we are not trying to run their business," Franckiewicz said.

"In fact, I think it is a very good idea for the school board policy makers to stay above politics," he Franckiewicz also said it would be "deplorable" for public funds to be spent on a lawsuit such as proposed. School board superintendent Roger Oge said Wednesday that he was extremely encouraged that the ultimate resolution of the conflict was near at hand.

"If this controversy is utlimately resolved in the best interest of the children I will be extremely proud of being associated with those persons responsible for the prevailing of reason and proud to have played a small part in the resolution," Oge said.

"It will take great courage and character to resolve these opportunities for improvement before us," he added.

School Board President Betty Diboll comfirmed the general mood for resolution of the conflict between the board and the city council Wednesday.

"It is my understanding that members of the board and council are working together to resolve the situation and I am sure everyone will be happy with the solutions," she said.

"We (members of both the school board and the city council) are all in agreement and we want what will be best for the students." Diboll added.

"Our primary interest is what is right for the children of our school system and we must move forward," she said.

Diboll also said she expected to reveal plans for resolution of the problems at Wednesday night's school board meeting.

"I am real happy about what we are going to do and I believe that every honoarble citzen will feel the same way," Diboll said.

She also confirmed that the issues of modular classroom units and the lawsuit against the city could be resolved after Wednesday's meeting.

She declined to be more specific stating she did not "want anything to get in way" of resolving the pro-

Hancock County school board refuses to approve administrative transfers

By BRENDA HEATHCOCK

The Hancock County School Board refused Monday to approve administrative transfers proposed by Superintendent Terrell Randolph.

Conflict arose over the recommended change for Donald Hillman as assistant superintendent of operation, maintenance and transportation who is currently serving as Hancock North Central High School principal. Several of the board members said they believed Hillman should continue as principal.

"When you have something that works, you should leave it alone," Board Member Tommy Shaw said. Randolph countered with the comment that "it wasn't working" and that the school district must not stand still but move forward.

"These transfers are needed to improve the quality of education in the district," he added.

Board president Billie Faye Lyons emphasized that no one doubted Hillman's ability, but a less costly maintenance supervisor could be Randolph stated the best possible person for this position was Hillman. Even in large industries. employees are transferred to improve services and keep them from losing effectiveness, he added.

Randolph also said he believed new leadership was needed in several areas of the district.

Charles B. Murphy Elementary School Principal Philip Terrell was recommended to replace Hillman.

According to Randolph's administrative reogranization Terrell's position would be filled by W. H. Haddock, current principal at Gulfview Elemenatry.

Supervisors agree to hire maintenance superintendent

BY DENA BISNETTE

The Hancock County Board of Supervisors has decided to hire a general maintenance superintendent rather than a county administrator.

On a proposal from Beat Four Supervisor Sam Perniciaro, the board voted unanimously Monday to hire William Johnson.

Johnson will begin overseeing county road and bridge projects in all five supervisors' districts Aug.1 as part of the county's implementation of the unit system, Board President A.A. Kellar said.

The road and bridge funds for all five beats will be pooled and used on a priority basis under the unit

Using a maintenance superintendent rather than an administrator will avoid duplication of financial tasks already performed by the county bookkeeping department and the office of the chancery clerk, according to Chancery Clerk Michael Johnson is presently administrator of public works for the City of Ocean Springs and is a former employee of the City of Bay St. Louis Utilities Department.

His salary was set at $22,000 per year on a six-month trial basis. If the board decides to keep Johnson after six months, $3,000 will be added to the annual salary.

Perniciaro said it is likely that the county will have to furnish a vehicle for the superintendent. In addition, it is possible that Johnson may need a secretary. The new superintendent will also oversee the work of a three-man UNIT-Page 8A

She said she had discussed the Bayou Cadet proposal with State Senator Gene Taylor, Thomas Dyson of the Governor's Office of State and Federal Programs and Jeff Taylor of South Mississippi Planning and Development District. Jeff Taylor has been assisting the board with attempts to obtain funding for the project. He told the board Monday that the project is one of six Hancock County projects listed in a request for consideration for 1987 Coastal Zone Management Program funding. Coastal Zone Management funds are provided through Bureau of Marine Resources.

The status of the Bayou Cadet project and others for which 1967 funding has been requested is expected to be made known later this summer, Taylor said.

The other five projects include development of beachfront locations considered constructing the marina in an existing natural harbor at Bayou Cadet, but the board is now considering a location further inland.

A Bureau of Marine Resources study at the original location included soil borings which indicated pilings would have to be unusually long and would not be feasible due to cost, Taylor said.

In addition, the only access to the original site would be beach Road, which floods whenever high tides are combined with an east wind, Beat One Supervisor Bert Courrege sáid.

Last year's proposal included 200 boatslips. That proposal has since been reduced to 100 boatslips to be

LaFrance Road closing delayed

BY DENA BISNETTE

A planned closing of LaFrance Road into Heron Bay Estates for a bridge construction project has been delayed.

Beat One Supervisor Bert Courrege said late Wednesday that efforts to obtain a temporary bridge while a drainage structure is replaced are continuing.

Courrege is working with Mercer Miller, an assistant to Rep. Trent Lott, to obtain a pontoon bridge from the U.S. Navy Construction Bat-

The drainage structure, known as Claiborne Highrise, was scheduled to be torn out July 7 and the road closed for about 10 days when Courrege learned that the temporary bridge might be available.

He had originally planned to provide a boat at the site for any residents needing to cross the canal.

Pile driving and other site preparation work by the bridge replacement contractor, Gulf Construction, will continue but will not close the road.

SITE INSPECTION—Hancock County Engineer Larry Seal, left, and Beat Four Supervisor Sam Perniciaro inspect drainage for a proposed road and parking area at the Hancock Medical Center site Monday. The paving work has been subcontracted to Artigues Construction of Bay St. Louis. The original subcontractor listed for the work was Bond Paving of Gulfport, which has filed a lawsuit against the county board of supervisors, contractors Claude Hogan and Búck's Inc., and architects Gresham, Smith and Partners. Circuit Judge Frank Alexander ruled Monday that Bond and the supervisors have a contract because Bond did not give its permission for the substitution of Artigues. (Staff photo by

Judge rules contract exists between Bond, supervisors

BY DENA BISNETTE

The Hancock County Board of Supervisors has been found to have a contract with a paving firm dropped from the Hancock Medical Center project.

In a declaratory judgement by Circuit Judge Frank Alexander Monday, the board was found to have a contract with Bond Paving of Bond, represented by Wiggins attorney Jack Parsons, filed suit late last year in Hancock County Circuit Court after being named in a list of prospective subcontractors for the project and then being dropped in favor of Artigues Construction, a Bay St. Louis firm.

The defendants named included Claude Hogan and Buck's Inc., the contractors; Gresham, Smith and Partners, a Florida architectural and entineering firm; and the Han subcontract for site work and paving cock County Board of Supervisors.

The supervisors are identified in the suit as "Roger D. Ladner, A.A. Burke(sic) Keller(sic), Cauregie(sic), Jimmy Travecca(sic) and Sammy Peniciar(sic)."

Alexander did not provide details on his judgement Monday, but told attorneys he would provide a memorandum explaining his decision within 10 days.

According to Walter James Phillips, attorney for the board of supervisors, Alexander did not state

Monday whether or not Bond also had contracts with the other defen-

Phillips said no decision will be made on whether the board will appeal the judgement until information has been provided on the rest of the ruling.

ne ruling. He said Tuesday morning that he intends to ask for a clarification on the matter.

Alexander said he based his decision on Rule 57 governing contractual agreements, but Phillips contends that the rule requires a written contract as basis for any claim for payment or damages.

Hogan listed Bond as a possible subcontractor, but according to Phillips, no contract for the Hancock Medical Center project existed between Bond and the board, architect, Hogan or Buck's Inc.

At the bid opening for the project during the Aug. 2, 1985 supervisors' meeting, the board requested that the low bidder provide a list of subcontractors. According to the suit, Bond was listed as subcontractor for site and paving work.

The suit further states that the contract between the board, listed as owner of the medical center, and Claude Hogan and Buck's Inc. states in part, "A listed subcontractor may be changed only upon written approval of the owner. The request for change shall state the reasons for the request with a release from the listed subcontractor attached thereto.'

The suit alleges "that the defendants Claude Hogan and Buck's, Inc., after being named lowest and best bidder and after being awarded the contract, proceeded to award the to Artigues Construction instead of Bond Paving Company, as set forth in its list of subcontractors as ac-County Board of Supervisors, thereby breaching the contract."

In addition, the suit alleges that no written approval was obtained from the board or from Bond before the substitution was made. Bond Paving is asking for an unspecified amount of damages. On the site, county crews have done some of the site preparation for the access road that is included in the paving project in question.

Last month, the board received a request from Hancock General Hospital Administrator Phillip Wolfe, speaking on behalf of the hospital board of trustees, for a change order on the paving project.

On Monday, County Engineer Larry Seal recommended that the board not accept the $37,000 change

The change order calls for about eight additional inches of undercutting in the roadbed. The material removed would be replaced with sand and filter fabric to improve drainage, Seal explained. The engineer said he feels the drainage problem may have a less costly solution.

The change order was requested when the site had water in existing ditches and low spots.

It was good to see Rev. Charles Clark at a United Way meeting on Tuesday.

As many of you know, Rev. Clark has been ill for an extensive period and it is good that he is on his way to recovery.

Rev. Clark is well known throughout the county, and involved in many community projects, so we know everyone will be happy to hear that he is now up and getting around.

We wish him a speedy recovery.

A group we hear very little about, yet doing very valuable service for our county is the Shriners.

The organization provides special care for those age 18 and under who are crippled or burn victims.

Shriner Archie Courrege says, if anyone knows of any crippled child 18 or younger to please give him a call at 467-1531.

In the last year from Hancock County some 14 crippled children, three burn victims, one boy with an eye injury, and one youngster run over by an auto were treated by the Shriners with no cost to the parents, Courrege reports.

There are another six crippled children with applications being prepared by their parents awaiting treatment.

The primary way the organization raises funds for the burn hospitals is through the annual Shriners Circus.

The circus is scheduled for Aug. 30 and 31 at the Mississippi Gulf Coast Coliseum. Persons interested in purchasing tickets may do so by contacting Courrege.

Even with the tremendous number of visitors in the area for the long Fourth of July weekend, law enforcement agencies report activities were quiet.

We are glad it was a quiet period for law enforcement agencies.

Shortcomings of classroom trailers listed

Sea Coast Echo Bay St. Louis

Dear Sir:

It is not my intent to discuss the purchase of trailers by the school board per se.

I wish only to comment on trailers as classrooms.

For some years I taught in a twoclassroom trailer,

It had two restrooms (one toilet, one hand basin per room), and across a narrow hall a small storage two air-conditioned classrooms could not comfortably accommodate more than 25 seated pupils.

When it rained, especially during a heavy rain, the thundering on the metal roof made it impossible to hear or to be heard. Such classrooms would be ill-suited for kindergarten use: 1) The necessary sinks, shelves and lockers would use too much

2) there would not be the work areas and open areas required for kindergarten procedures:

3) free movement of any kind for young children would be sadly restricted: 4) display space for paintings and

School board seems way out of line

Sea Coast Echo Bay St. Louis

Dear Editor.

The reports, letters and editorials made public during the last two weeks make the Bay-Waveland school board seem way out of line.

In the presence of a city council which has foreseen a need and correctly met it, this school board wants to mask its tardiness and failure to provide by causing a squall while flinging our money into trailers and attorneys' fees.

We taxpayers need a lot more conservative and responsible approach than this when our young, nonvoting children and our money are af-

. Not only that, but the school year will be with us soon, and we ought to take advantage of whatever safe and comfortable quarters we can get for as little as we have to spend while we put up a building that will serve us a long time.

After all, kindergarten is here to stay, our children will keep on arriving, and the prospects for their future employment and satisfaction will always depend heavily on education.

Rule 18 frustrates democratic government

Sea Coast Echo Bay St. Louis

Dear Sir,

The charade that occurred on July 3, 1986 at 10:30 a.m. was advertised as a public meeting of the Bay St. Louis Municipal Separate School District Board.

Its ostensible purpose was the consideration of a lawsuit against the City of Bay St. Louis.

The snap call for a meeting of the board did not meet the required 24 hours notice to the public and the press, and therefore, only three citizens were able to register to address the board.

By invoking its infamous 'Rule 18,' the president of the board shut off all other attempts to address the board.

The majority of the board then proceeded to do what they had set out to do: sue the City of Bay St. Louis.

The president of the board unleashed a venomous attack on the Sun-Herald and The Sea Coast Echo reporters because of her alleged charge that both newspapers failed to accurately report what she perceived as justification for prior board action in deciding to purchase trailers for the new kindergarten.

However, when members of the audience indicated thay they wished to respond, the board president again invoked the odorous 'Rule 18,' and prevented any expression of opinion by the public. The attorney for the board, in conjunction with another law firm, has been authorized to engage in legal dueling with the City of Bay St. Louis at a cost to the people of $70 per hour, plus expenses. This needless expenditure of money will surely do major harm to the school system and to the needs of the children for whom the system was created.

But the rights of the people guaranteed by our republic need constant defense when confronted by the insensitivity of such as compose the Bay St. Louis Municipal Separate School District Board.

If God wished to address this school board, 'Rule 18' would be used to deny Him that right.

A Weekly Editorial From Mississippi Economic Council

THE VALUE OF HOME-GROWN BUSINESS

Pontotoc, Mississippi, the small town whose name means 'the land of the battle where the cattails stood," took time out last week to celebrate its 150th birthday. The week-long celebration included arts and crafts exhibits, country music, a pageant, parade, wagon train trail rides, religious services, and the otrher activities usually included in such

One of the highlights of the week was a trade fair which focused on the community's economy; products and services produced and provided by business owners, operators, and workers in the community.

Special mention was made of one particular manufacturer. Gerald Washington grew up on a Pontotoc County farm, went to school in Pontotoc, and found employment in the community. In the beginning he worked in a furniture manufacturing plant but labored on the family farm to supplement his income.

But he wanted more. So he opened his own furniture opeation at home. making furniture frames in a building that once housed the chickens. He bought a truck and made deliveries in the area. Then he added an upholstery section with his wife providing the cutting and sew-

That was eleven years ago. Now

Gerald Washington is off the farm; he doesn't have time. He manages a furniture manufacturing plant in Pontotoc with 300 employees and an annual sales volume in excess of $20 million, all springing from the oneman operation in the chicken house.

In fact, Washington Furniture Company has just been sold to a national corporation and Gerald Washington has agreed to continue to manage the facility.

That's what home-owned industry can do for a community, and for a free enterprising entrepreneur.

Mississippi needs to provide all the incentives and all the encouragement we can for our home-grown, home-owned, and home-operated businesses.

Classroom trailers to be insurance liability

July 3, 1966 Sea Coast Echo Bay St. Louis

Dear Editor:

Thursday morning, July 3, 1986, the Bay St. Louis Public School Board of Trustees (School Board) held a "star chamber" meeting which would probably have taught the Russians a lesson.

Although the meeting was only announced in the newspapers delivered Thursday morning, I was not permitted to address the "trustees" because I had not applied for permission to do so 24 hours in advance.

Since being denied permission to address the "trustees," I have obtained a copy of their "Summary of Policies." Clearly, their action was contrary to their "policies," to say nothing of common sense respecting operation of public bodies.

If I had been permitted to address the "trustees" I would have pointed out to them (as an insurance consultant recognized in both federal and state courts of Louisiana, Mississippi, Tennessee, and Oklahoma, that use of the trailers for kindergarten classes will:

1) unnecessarily expose the young children to serious injury, even possible death;

2) probably result in insurance problems respecting both their property and liability coverages.

Everyone is aware of the difficulties public bodies are encountering on their insurance.

Use of the classrooms may result in the loss of the school system's property or liability coverages or an increase in insurance premiums of as much as $50,000 or $100,000 per year.

It is hard to understand why a public body is willing to violate their trust simply to show the public that they are in charge.

Robert W. Breeden Bay St. Louis

Appointed school board members unresponsive to voters

To the Editor Sea Coast Echo

Dear Sir,

I have not spoken to anyone who thinks trailers are the answer for housing kindergarten children.

After getting trailers, permanent classrooms will have to be built sooner of later anyway. If we have a storm, trailers are the first to go. Insurance, if you can get it, must be very high.

As for the board suing Bay St. Louis, the only ones who will come out ahead are the lawyers who are to be paid $70 an hour. Where will this money come from?

If the board members appointed by the council were elected by the people as the two board members of Waveland are, they would have to consider the will of the voters.

After all, it is the taxpayers' money they are spending.

If the council can appoint board members, why can they not remove them, since the mayor of both cities and most of the voters do not want the trailers?

My hat off to Danny Carter. In my estimation he is the only one on the school board talking sense.

The most recent reports in the newspapers show that the Bay St. Louis schools rank next to the bottom of any city on the Coast in academic achievement.

Nine happy people received unexpected checks from the Consumer Protection Division of the Attorney General's Office on June 25. The nine were used-car buyers who were the victims of odometer rollbacks. The money, amounting to approximately $13,500 plus civil penalties, was paid by the automobile dealers. where the cars were purchased.

The investigation was carried out by a Consumer Protection investigator and a Highway Patrol investigator who attended automobile auctions as potential buyers. They observed persons rolling odometers back and captured some of this action on video tape. They then traced the history of the automobiles through their tag numbers and Tax Commission records, Attorney General Ed Pittman said the money returned on June 25 is only part of the money which will be refunded through this initial investigation. In addition to the two car dealers who have made and are making restitution now, the Consumer Protection Division is negotiating settlement with three others. Additional payments to consumers will be made within the next few months, he said.

With the exception of the consumer who made the original complaint, none of the persons who received checks knew that their odometers had been rolled back until they were contacted by the Attorney General's Office and told they would be receiving a repayment.

A new law passed in the 1986 session and going into effect in January, 1987, will help put a stop to odometer rollbacks. After that time, all certificates of title for used cars will have the actual odometer reading on the face of the title.

predicts that the savings will be even greater next year as the University Division of the AG's Office takes over more of the legal work of the state's universities.

The board renewed its contract with the Attorney General's Office at its annual meeting on June 19 after looking over the year-end report submitted by Assistant Attorney General Carolyn Mills, head of the Universities Division.

During the 1986 years, legal expenses paid by the board amounted to $452,997. Appproximately half of that amount went to the Universities Division, with the remainder going to private law firms still working on cases started before the contract between the state agencies went into effect. The board spent $768,188 in 1985; $803,822 in 1984; and $648,952 in

The monetary saving is important, Attorney General Pittman said, but equally important, we are building a consistent legal policy for the board. This is something they have not had previously with many different firms handling cases for the universities and for the board. Open Meetings/Open Records

Guidelines

A new booklet on the state's open meetings and open records laws has been published as a cooperative effort by the Mississippi State Bar Association and the Attorney General's Office. The booklet incorporates the opinions issued by the Attorney General's Office since 1975 and the court cases which have interpreted Mississippi's open meetings and open records laws in explaining what the laws require of state and local government and what rights they give to the general

Copies of the boklet can be obtained from the State Bar Association or the Attorney General's Office. Capital Litigation Workshop

The Attorney General's Office hosted a one-day workshop oncapital litigation for the state's district attorneys and assistant district attorneys on Friday, June

27. The workshop concentrated on issues in death penalty cases, both the guilt and sentencing phases. It was conducted by Assistant Attorney General Marvin White and Special Assistant Amy Whitten, who handle post-conviction litigation on death penalty cases for the state. Fireworks Danger

The Fourth of July season is approaching again, with the near certainty that some children in our state will be injured by fireworks which are not properly used or supervised.

Only 12 states allow unsupervised use of Class C fireworks without any approval by a law enforcement agency. Mississippi is one of the 12. (Class C fireworks are the common fireworks and firecrackers sold for consumer use.)

Law enforcement officers and other interested parties should be aware that it is against state law to sell fireworks to anyone under the age of 12. It is also unlawful to set off fireworks of any type within 600 feet of any church, hospital or school, or to ignite or discharge fireworks from or into or at any motor vehicle. It is against both state and federal law to sell cherry bombs, aerial bombs or any other fireworks conthan two grains of powwder. Mail-order kits designed to build these fireworks are also banned by law.

Individual cities may have laws of their own completely banning the sale or use of fireworks within the citv limits.

In 1985, more than 10,300 people were treated in emergency rooms for injuries associated with fireworks. Forty-two percent of the victims were under 15. Let's keep Mississippi's children safe this year.

State law provides a fine of up to $1,000 and a jail term of up to one year for violating the fireworks laws, and also provides that anyone violating the law shall be civilly responsible for any injury, death or property damage caused by the illegal fireworks.

Medicaid Fraud Unit Collections Through the month of June, 1986, the Attorney General's Office rather the Medicaid Fraud Control Division than by private counselissed and all of the Attorney General's Office took' Attorney General Pittman in $164,510.88 in restitution, civil penalties and fines. overcharges.

This year's figure for the first six months is already in excess of the $111,373 collected in 1985, the second year of operation for the division. The increase in collections, according to division head Glenn Smith, is largely due to the growing level of experience and expertise of the investigative unit.

Eyes on Mississippi

Bill Minor

JACKSON-Bill Allain may be remembered as the governor who had more feuds with other state officials than any chief executive in many years.

At the moment, Allain is openly waging verbal warfare against other state officials on three fronts. That very easily could increase as time goes by, some observers believe.

Atty. Gen. Ed Pittman, Allain's successor in the AG's office, was the first elected state officer with whom Allain began crossing swords, starting back almost two years ago.

Allain has managed to snipe at Pittman every so often, the latest being the potshots he took at the AG last week before the Fiscal Management Board over Pittman's contracting with state agencies for legal ser-

Significantly, as has often been the case in venting ire on some other official, Allain did not hurl his barbs in a face to face confrontation, but at one of Pittman's assistants.

Allain's primary target for most of the past year has been the threemember State Highway Commission. This fued turned into such a nasty situation during the 1986 legislative session that it necessitated a special session of the Legislature to give the Highway Department operating funds for this

Of late, Allain seems to have shifted primary targets again. The chief object of his potshots now seems to be Lieut. Gov. Brad Dye. Their differences first became public during the 1986 regular session when Dye refused a summons from Allain to confer about the state budget crisis if Allain remained adamant about vetoing any tax increase.

Ever since the special session in late May when the Senate blocked redistribution of $12 million taken from the Highway Department, Allain has publicly placed the blame for the Senate action on Dye, making the Lieutenant Governor the bete noir of welfare and mental health forces and the small universities who hoped to share in the $12 million highway funds.

In reality, Allain is attributing considerably more influence and power in the Senate to Dye than the Lieutenant Governor now holds in that body. The coalition of senators which blocked redistribution of the highway funds primarily followed the lead of Sen. Bob Montgomery, of Canton, the Senate Finance chairman rather than Dye forces.

Montgomery has contended that the $12 million would compound the already grave error of using "one time" money as a band-aid for vital state services rather than raising new revenues. On that issue - raising taxes to help solve the state's fiscal crisis-hinges the apparent impasse between Allain and the Senate.

At almost every opportunity recently, Allain has sniped at Dye rather than the entire Senate. so much so that Dye has apparently taken over top billing in the Allain political shooting gallery.

Few Mississippi governors and lieutenant governors have been on intimate terms in years. Perhaps not since the 50's when Hugh White and Carroll Gartin made a team in dealing with the Legislature have the state's two top officers been very

But no governor has been as openly hostile towards the No. 2 man in his administration as Allain has apparently become in recent weeks toward Dye. How that relationship is going to affect state government is certainly not a healthy prospect. In the worst case, it could result in Allain not making any out-of-state trips to prevent Dye from being acting governor.

Allain's running verbal gun battles with others around state government, some observers contend, is rooted in some psychological need he has to always have a target for his personal barbs that he fires constantly from the hip.

It's certainly a new experience in the way state government is conducted in Mississippi. But there are many skeptics who wonder if it is getting us anywhere.

Q: My former husband is several months behind in the payment of child support but he still visits with our children on weekends. Can I prevent him from visiting until he catches up on his support payments?

A: You should not prevent visitation because support payments have not been made. Support and visitation are independent rights. Your former husband has the right to visit whether or not he ever pays child support, and conversely, owes the obligation of support whether or not he ever visits. Refusing visitation will subject you to contempt of court. Should your former husband fall as much as three months behind in paying child support, you should contact your lawyer. Q: I bought a car and financed it through my local bank. Shortly after I bought the car, I lost my job. After missing several payments I let the bank have the car back. Now the bank says I still owe them money. Do I have to pay that money when I don't even have the car?

A: The creditor must sell the car in a commercially acceptable manner. If the car is resold for less than what you owe on the account, you will be charged with the difference. The bank may obtain a judgment against you for the remaining balance of money owed.

NORDA devision head receives award

Dr. Donald Durham, head of the M: pping, Charting and Geodesy Division of the Naval Ocean Research and Development Activity at NSTL received the Defense Mapping Agency Research and Development Award at an awards day luncheon and ceremony recently at Fort McNair in Washington, D.C.

Air Force Maj. Gen. Robert A. Rosenberg, director of DMA, and David O. Cooke, deputy assistant highly professional and enthusiastic secretary of defense, presented the award citing Durham's significant contributions to both DMA and Navy Mapping, Charting and Geodesy Research, development, test and evaluation, which culminated in major technical, programmatic and organizational chievements from Oct. 1, 1984 through Sept. 30, 1985. The citation stated in part: "The approach Dr. Durham has demonstrated towards his MC&G programs has resulted in significant advances in MC&G RDT&E. These efforts are most highly commended."

Durham has worked at NORDA in several research and management positions since 1978.

Pine beetle activity down in this area

Southern Pine Beetle activity is continuing at an increasing pace in Central and North Mississippi but appears to be on the wane in some Southern portions of the state, according to State Forestry Commission authorities, i. Jim Bright, protection chief for the commission, said that detection flights so far this year have picked up some active beetle spots in 48 counties. Spot-size average is running at about 1.4 acres.

Five counties are showing beetle populations at the epidemic level; they are Pike, Rankin, Benton, Tip-pah and Union. Although good forest management practices that keep trees growing vigorously will help prevent beetle buildups, there is no economically feasible way to stop them once they explode into large numbers. Landowners can minimize damages by cutting infested trees and a buffer of uninfested trees at the active head of beetle spots, but in the end only nature can stop a Southern Pine Beetle epidemic, according to Commission Entomologist Bill Lambert.

The Forestry Commission cautions landowners to beware of $1,245.63 LAW LIBRARY untested control treatments that have recently surfaced.

HOME BUYERS VIEWING LOANS AS MAJOR INVESTMENTS Question: There seems to be a great deal of refinancing of existing mortgages by current homeowners. What impact is this having on the availability of money? P.M., Mc-Comb. Answer: Der P.M.:

The American mortgage market, overwhelmed this year with an unprecedented $300 billion in demand for financing and refinancing, is going through a great upheaval that will mean mortgages are refinanced, restructured and modified frequently. People are beginning to realize that mortgage is a major investment and is something you should finance and refinance when it is to your advantage to do so.

The idea of the passive mortgage. something that just lies there and doesn't move for 30 years, is just about dead.

Consumers are awakening to the fact that it is not only interest rates but also the structure and term of a home loan that can have an enormous influence on a home buyer's

This is apparent in the current wave of popularity of 15-year mor-

Such mortgages, which now constitute 12 to 15 percent of mortgages outstanding, will make up a quarter of the market within three years, according to analysts who follow movements in the mortgage market. The public's keener awareness of mortgage choices is also leading to a growing rejection of adjustable-rate mortgages (ARMs), which require a borrower to bear his lender's interest rate risk. ARMs. which now represent 35 percent of new mortgages, are forecast to fall to 20 percent or 25 percent of the market within three

Finally, consumers are starting to play a much more active role in managing their mortgages.

A mortgage is something that a borrower should finance and refinance when it is to his or her advantage to do so. It is not something you stash away and forget.

Council to support sand beach master plan

By BRENDA HEATHCOCK

Joining the Hancock County Board of Supervisors and the Waveland Board of Alderman, members of the Bay St. Louis City Council passed a resolution Tuesday to adopt the sandbeach master plan.

Officially called the Hancock County Master Plan for Shorefront Protection and Utilization, the plan outlines in detail methods to restore, protect, replenish and improve the county's beachfront areas.

County officials, businessmen and concerned residents were aided in the project by the South Mississippi Planning and Development District and other agencies in preparing the plan which took more than a year to finalize and is expected to be printed for general distribution in the near future.

John Scafide, president of the Hancock County Sand Beach Technical Advisory Council, and Jeff Taylor of SMPDD, presented a resolution to adopt the plan to the Bay Council at Tuesday's meeting and urged members to adopt the plan.

Councilman Jim Thriffiley questioned the council's offering support for a plan they had not yet had the opportunity to review.

Ward 1 Councilman Lisa Cowand stated she and Mayor Victor Franckiewicz Jr. had been in on much on the preparation of the plan and had reviewed it extensively.

Taylor then made a brief presentation on the plan, the council agreed to adopt the resloution, 4-1. Councilman Charles Johnson voted no. He said be believed the board should have an opportunity to review the plan before pledging support.

In other business at the meeting Cowand was elected to serve as council president and John Wilkerson will serve as vice-president.

Cowand replaces Councilman Wilmer Seymour as president.

Also at the meeting council members were praised by Bay resident Mike Cuevas for their handling of duties in the first year.

Cuevas added her only citicism was that the mayor needed a public relations manager. The general public can not appreciate the "hornet's nest" the mayor inherited with the office and necessary for paving. is repeatedly blamed for mistakes and incompetence of the last administration. Area resident Donna Gibson also thanked the board for standing up for citizens in the conflict with the school board and not letting tax dollars be wasted.

At the meeting Franckiewicz reported the final inspection of the sewage extsion project was scheduled for today, July 10.

While the city has not yet made final payments on the system, he said residents could hook-up now because substantional completions have been accepted.

Following his report, Councilman Wilkerson took the opportunity to thank Franckiewicz for his work on improving the system.

"The mayor has been diligent in saving the city money and allowing sewerage services to be extended to areas not included in the original project," Wilkerson said. He also reported that completion of the work on Central Avenue continued to be delayed due problems getting the required compaction Franckiewicz added that the contract time allowed for the project had not yet expired.

In other business the council: -Adopted a resolution to join the coast-wide council of governments.

-Accepted a low bid of 7.25 from Merchants Bank for the interest on the $350,000 for the school system.

-Awarded bids to J. B. Barker of Long Beach for repairs to sewer point breaks at Ramoneda Street and Beach Boulevard, $4,600; Carre Court and Third Street, $4,250; and Webb Street and Dunbar Avenue, $6,342.

-Awarded a bid to Southland Inc. of Gulfport for repairs to a sewer point break at Carroll and Necaise avenues.

—Discussed proposed changes in the ordinance dealing with vehicles

-Voted to grant a 30-day temporary permit for the Bay-Waveland Taxi and Limo Service.

Franchise business offers security

MISSISSIPPI STATE - In times of economic hardship, many people try to make their own way by opening a business. Franchise businesses are popular according to Rosemary Tigrett, an area consumer management specialist with the Mississippi Cooperative Extension Service.

* Usually franchises earn more money and start making a profit sooner than an independent business just starting out.

* Another advantage is that many franchisors offer training for their new entrepreneurs. Mrs. Tigrett reminded entrepreneurs to consider the disadvantages too. "First. there is a lack of independent ownership and flexibility in running the business," she said. "Second, some companies require high fees and royalties making franchising more costly than owning independently."

These costs usually include the initial franchise fee, royalty fees and advertising fees on total sales, and costs for a suitable site, supplies, the grand opening and other incidentals.

For more information about franchise businesses. Mrs. Tigrett recommended several publications. "Franchise Opportunities Handbook," if not at the library, is available from U.S. Government Printing Office, Washington, D.C. 20402. The cost is $13.50 payable to provided by initial construction. However, the county plans to acquire enough property, about eight acres, to provide room for later construction of the other 100 slips.

Capers said that a Community Development Block Grant would probably not cover the entire $1 million cost of building the Bayou Cadet facility and said her agency assisted Biloxi in using revenue bonds to finance the recreational marina there.

Courrege said he anticipates the biggest problem involved to be obtaining wetlands mitigation permits for the inside site.

Capers said her agency can provide the county with more specific cost figures on the project as well as projections on how the facility could repay the county's share of the cost.

She said she is interested in working on the project on a contingency basis, with her fee to be paid with a percentage of whatever grant funding is obtained.

She told the board she will check with the consultants to find out if they will also work on contingency. She is expected to rport her fin-

Senator Taylor said Tuesday that he had requested that Capers meet with the board because "she knows where the money is."

He said that an additional source of funding might be a $100 million bond bill passed by the legislature during the 1986 session. The bonds are earmarked for industrial expansion and contain some money available for local development.

"I'm pleased the board is looking into this. Having traveled the coast. I have seen a rejuvenation in the seafood industry and I would like to see Hancock County get the benefit of that," the senator said.

He added that there are possibilities that privately developed projects at Bayou Cadet could eventually dovetail with the proposed county facility, providing even more services to commercial fishermen.

The July 16 supervisors' meeting will be 9 a.m. in the boardroom on the second floor of the Hancock County Courthouse.

MC GUIRE

I was sitting or, rather lounging, in the sultry drowsiness of a summer afternoon in the shade of the magnolia tree, trying to make up my lazy mind whether to settle for a ripe peach, eaten out of hand, drippingsweet, or whether to bestir myself a bit more and slice a chilled peach over a bowl of ice cream - or go even further, in the midst of my summer siesta, and make some peach ice

Well, after I'd devoured a peach or two from the bounty in the basket, I decided to make ice cream, and to ask a couple of friends over to share this treat.

Fresh peaches and ice cream have been one of my special summertime favorites ever since I can remember, back to my childhood days when I felt privileged to help the family cook pack the ice cream salt around the hand-cranked freezer and slowly churn by hand until the whole luscious business was ready - of course, my brothers and sister battled for the privilege, too as well as for the chance to lick the "dasher." Cut down a bit here's that old recipe for:

FRESH PEACH ICE CREAM 1 pint fresh peaches, mashed smooth

½ cup sugar 3 pints rich cream ½-cup sugar, bit more, if you wish

Add the first half-cup of sugar to the mashed peaches and mix together well. Set aside. Add the other half cup of sugar to the cream. and partially freeze the cream and sugar mixture in a two-quart hand- brandy cranked freezer. Then add the peach and sugar mixture and freeze, working that handle all the time!

Purists maintain that the handoperated freezer is the only way to firmer texture). Combine with the make good peach or other ice" ice cream and brandy and refreeze, cream, others swear by the electric freezer or the fridge-freezer - take your choice. Here's one recipe for the fridge:

Peach Mousse

2 cups sweetened peaches, pureed (6 to 7 peaches, depending upon size) 6 egg yolks

½ cup heavy cream (1 cup whip-Few drops red food coloring (optional)

Cook the peaches quite soft with water and enough sugar to sweeten well, according to their natural degree of sweetness, so taste! Buzz in blender or mash well to get two cups of puree, fine or coarse according to your taste. Place in the top ofa double boiler or in a heavy pan if vou're more sure of yourself; the heavy pot is quicker, the double boiler method is safer. Beat in the egg yolks with a wire whisk - that's the best tool for this - and whip over and begins to thicken. Pour the mixture into a bowl, a rather large one, and chill well. If it's too pale, add the least bit of coloring till it's just a blushing pink not sunburn red, please! Pour into a refrigerator tray or mold, and freeze for at least 4 hours. (Four to six servings). Especially pretty frozen in a mold, and surrounded by peach slices at serving time.

a low fire until the mixture is frothy

And, for an elegant quick-to-make dessert, here's:

BRANDIED PEACH ICE CREAM 2 cups sliced fresh peaches 2 Tblsp. sugar

1 pint vanilla ice cream, slightly softened

One-third cup peach flavored

Combine peaches and sugar in blender and whirl until pureed, or mash together until pureed. (I prefer to mash mine, as I like the either in a mold or in individual dishes. (Four to six servings).

Bait scents make sense

Ever wonder why the bass suddenly turn off after you've wrestled and substance to your lure or line. So, if released a northern pike? Do you you don't cover that up, it will be a think the fish are getting finicky because they no longer want your lure? Well, the answer could be found in some of the odors left behind on your line, lure or hands!

"If you have gasoline on your hands, you can transfer that to bait," Linda England, Johnson Outboards Pro Staff member informs us. "Cigarette smokers will have a particular odor on their hands; any kind of grease oil or sunscreen will transfer to a lure.

Also, when fish are caught they secrete a substance through their skin that's a fright substance, and if you handle the fish-put it in your live well or release it, whatever-you'll get this substance on your hands.

If you readjust your lure or cut and retie your line, you transfer this while before you get another bite."

It has long been established that bass have a keen sense of smell, which they use to locate prey, detect predators, select mates, and locate certain vegetation. A bass "smells" through two nostrils, located on each side of the snout. Water is forced through the anterior nostril openings, over sensory nerve endings, and out the posterior nostril.

A bass' sense of smell is part of a complicated nervous system, which includes its lateral line nerve system and its sense of hearing. Combined, these senses allow the bass to pinpoint a prey's position and speed. Smell is an "early warning" system which works at long distances; taste is something the bass can only use at close range.

Bass also have body odors just as human beings do. This odor helps fish to identify their own species and predators. Further, body odor influences the social behavior of school fish.

It is also an established fact that the older the bass, the more acute its sense of smell has become, as the olfactory folds within the olfactory organ increase as the bass grows in

This keen sense of smell can be utilized to the bass fisherman's advantage through the proper and effective use of bait scents. And the use of these attractants can mean a big difference in the number and size of bass you catch.

"I use Fish Formula II and Berkley Strike," states David Wharton, Johnson Outboards Pro Staff Member. "I think they really make a difference in the number of bites that you will get during the day."

Many bass pros insist that the real attraction for bait scents lies in its motivational properties on inactive

"I personally feel that they are most effective on inactive fish," relates England. "They're going to trigger that fish to take your lure. I also think-and maybe this is a thing that a lot of people don't think about-when a fish is very active he isn't very disciminating. A bait scent on your lure helps an active bass choose your particular offering rather than something else that may be nearby." As a rule of thumb, bait scents should be applied every 15-20 minutes. Plastic lures should be sprayed more often. Some pros reapply the bait scent on every other cast; however, that frequency is not at all necessary.

When properly used, bait scents can act as a screen for repellent odors and also stimulate a bass to attack your lure instead of something else or nothing at all.

Evenings in the Park programs scheduled

The "Tuesday Evenings in the Park" Interpretive Program at the William M. Colmer Visitor Center in Ocean Springs will continue during the month of July, Superintendent Jerry Eubanks reported.

The programs will be presented by National Park Service volunteers and staff. Tuesday evening, July 8, Christopher Patrie, a USAF pilot at Keesler Air Force Base assigned to hurricane surveillance, will detail his job as a "hurricane hunter."

The history of the Mississippi Gulf Coast seafood industry will be the topic of the July 15 program presented by Val Husley, director of the Seafood Industry Museum in Biloxi.

The "Birds of Walter Anderson," a slide program presented by Mary Anderson Pichartd, an Ocean Springs writer, will be conducted on Ju-

The "Tuesday Evenings in the Park" program series will conclude on July 29 when Keith Hartison, director of the Jefferson Davis Shrine, will describe the last years of Jefferson Davis at Beauvoir.

"We look forward to the community attendance at these programs, which should be of interest to all," said Eubanks.

The programs are free and open to the public. Due to limited seating in the auditorium of the William M. Colmer Visitor Center of Gulf Islands National Seashore, reservations are requested.

For more information and reservations, please call the Visitor Center at (6)1)875-9057 between 8 a.m. and 6 p.m.

Bar Association develops guide to Mississippi law

What would be the best way to improve youth knowledge and paricipation in the legal system?

The Mississippi State Bar asked i tself this question and concluded t hat the answer would be to develop a guide to the laws which affect oung Mississippians.

In a project of the Youth Educatic on for Citizenship Committee of the be ir association, a book titled 'Youth Society: Rights and Rsponsit vilities' has been published in conjur action with the Mississippi College

Sci nool of Law. I 'art of an on-going law-related edi ication effort by the bar, the book disc cusses the law in detail in topics cov ering relationships - to the famito society and to school soci eties' controls and the court legal terms and a section on where the student can go for help.

The bar association hopes the book will teach students how to be responsible citizens in a democracy.

Perhaps, use of the book in the classroom will prevent themn from growing up to be the kind of adults who don't vote, avoid jury service and have no idea how they can influence their government.

Too many young people break the law, and their legal illiteracy puts them and all of us at risk.

When students learn to view law as a source of knowledge and guardian of their rights, then they have an investment in supporting and improving the system.

The book is available from the office of Programs and Communications, Mississippi State Bar, P.O. Box 2168, Jackson, MS 39225-2168.

Chevron U.S.A. Inc. sponsored the Service Station Retailing Competition during the Mississippi High School DECA Conference held recently in Jackson.

More than 850 students enrolled in Distributive Education classes participated in the four-day event.

The Annual Chevron Travel Awards were given to students outstanding in Petroleum Marketing and Distribution classes. The awards were presented by Larry Johnson, Chevron company representative and Harold Ray Robertson, Chevron dealer. Both men serve on the State DECA Advisory Council.

The students competed in two categories. Winners in the Master Employee level category were: first place, Tim Posey from Rankin County DECA; second place, Stacie Smith of Vicksburg Warren Vocational Center; third place, George Jackson of Murrah High School in Jackson,

In the Supervisory level category winners were: first place, Penelope Moulds from Murrah High; second place, John Dowden from Bay High School in Bay St. Louis; third place, Stephen Winters, Hernando High

GED test takers 71% successful

The American Council on Educa- Tests in the U.S. and Canada. tion recently released information on the number of people taking the nearly 3,400 testing locations, 468,483 GED Tests during 1985.

According to Douglas R. Whitney, director of the council's GED Testing Service, "The GED Testing Program continues to offer a substantial number of people the opportunity to qualify for a high school equivalency credential."

According to William Box, GED administrator for the Mississippi Department of Education, almost 10,000 people took the GED Tests in Mississippi during 1985.

Of this number, over 7,000 GED certificates were issued. This represents a 71 percent success rate of those taking the Tests.

The average age of the examinee in Mississippi is 24.9 years. Nearly 38 percent of the examinees. however, were 19 or younger; 39 percent were 20-29; 15.1 percent were 30-39; while about 8 percent were 40 or older.

Almost half of the examinees reported that they were planning to continue their education or training beyond the high school level. Examinees tested during 1985 completed an average of 9.6 years of school before leaving school. During 1985, 711,392 peopleslightly up from 1984-took the GED

examinees earned scores that qualified them for an equivalency

Approximately 72 percent of the examinees who completed the test b attery in 1985 earned scores sufficient to qualify for the equivalency credential awarded by their state, territory, or province.

Departments and ministries of education in the United States and Canada awarded 440,552 credentials based on GED Testing.

GED Tests are available in English, Spanish, and French, as well as a special edition including audiocassette, braille, or large Since 1971, the GED Testing Program has enabled nearly six million adults to obtain a high school equivalency credential. These credentials are accepted by most colleges and employers to satisfy requirements for a secondary level credential.

Directory lists service for pregnant teens record one of the nation's highest Fask Force of the Commission for Children and Youth, Governor's Office of Federal-State Programs, has produced a directory of services available to pregnant and parenting teenagers.

The directory lists information about 28 programs that offer services, such as program location, hours of operation, services provided, eligibility requirements, funding sources and telephone numbers and names of social workers affiliated with the program.

"Task force members spent months gathering information and determining what programs are currently being offered to serve the state's teens," said CCY Director Nellie B. Hutchison.

"The result is a directory that will, hopefully, help expedite networking and referrals among health and human services providers and draw attention to the need for services for pregnant and parenting teens in the state." Information on programs offered by four statewide agencies - the State Department of Education/Vocational Home Economics, State Department of Health, State Department of Mental Health and State Department of Public Welfare— also is provided. The directory lists the locations of county and district health depart-teen pregnancy and infant mortality In gathering information for the rates, the Adolescent Pregnancy booklet, Futchison explained that the task force identified several problems relating to services for pregnant or parenting teenagers. They include:

With Mississippi continuing to ment offices, regional mental health offices and county welfare offices.

* Services for this group are inadequate and unevenly distributed throughout the state.

* Information on programs serving pregnant and parenting teens is still incomplete.

* Existing programs have no network to exchange information.

* Few programs listed are designed for pregnant teens only and serve the pregnant teen as they do any other pregnant client.

* Service providers identified many barriers to service delivery, including a lack of day care for lowincome families; lack of transportation to access services; and lack of an adequate referral system between schools, churches, families and service providers.

"There is a positive side," Hutchison said. "Of the programs in existence, a majority of them do attempt to provide some type of counseling, basic nutritional education, some type of parenting skills training and linkages to other agencies providing needed services."

For more information on the directory, interested persons may contact the Commission for Children and Youth at 301 W. Pearl St., 39203-3090, or phone 949-2009.

USM seeks hosts for international students

HATTIESBURG - Officials at the English Language Institute, based at the University of Southern Mississippi, are looking for host families to entertain one or more international students during the institute's summer recess.

A group of eight oriental students four men and four women - will continue their studies at the ELI this fall. The summer recess will last from July 27 to Aug. 25 and home visits are being planned for all or part of that time.

According to Kathryn Vasselus, ELI instructor, the Korean and Japanese youngsters range in age from 18 to 23.

"They will continue their studies in September," she daid. "But, during the break, they want to get to know people and practice their English."

The ELI traditionally has coordinated home visits for its students in an effort to promote goodwill and international understanding. The institute has arranged visits for countless students during holiday seasons and session breaks. For more information, or to extend an invitation, contact the English Language Institute, Southern Station Box 5065, Hattiesburg, Miss., 39406-5065, or call (601) 266-4337.

4-H News

By Daney Jackson Extension 4-H Youth Agent

FOREST PRODUCT USES One goal of the 4-H forestry project is to teach 4-H members about the many uses of forest products, An interesting use to many youth is the manufacture of baseball bats.

One of the most famous brands of baseball bats, the Louisville Slugger, has been relied on by professionals and amateurs for more than

The owners of the Louisville Slugger trademark use select ash trees from Pennsylvania and New York, but ash trees are also grown in Mississippi. Baseball bats have always been made of ash because of its ability to absorb shock, bend without breaking and weight with bulkiness.

The 200,000 trees chopped down each year to produce the Louisville Slugger bats are divided into billets. or big chunks of wood, and left to air dry for six to eight months. They are then sorted for quality with the best wood set aside for the professionals' bats and the remaining 90 percent for bats going to the retail.

market. The bats for the big-leaguers are hand-turned on lathes by eight master wood workers, who produce one bat every 15 minutes. By contrast, machine lathes spit out the retail bats at a rate of one every eight seconds.

Baseball bats are not the only use for the ash trees. Today, the handles' of many picks, shovels, rakes and axes are made of ash. It is also used : for laminated wood tennis racquets, hockey sticks and skis.

Despite the wood's strength and toughness, it can still be worked readily with hand or power tools. The wood's close grain gives it a high nail and screw holding power. The wood can also be glued and works to a beautiful natural or stained finish. These uses combined with its popularity with furniture makers place ash among the commercial hardwood leaders.

In Hancock County four 4-H'ers will participate in the 4-H Forestry Contest. The contest will be held during 4-H Club Congress, June 16-19 at Mississippi State University.

Paula Spivey, Michael Seal, Sharon Koenenn, and Leigh Jones are our representatives. They have studied Tree Identification, Tree Measurements, and General Forestry Knowledge. We would like to send a thank you note to Mr. David Watts, County Forester, for his help in training.

JANET FREEMAN'S first grade class at North Bay Elementary was recently given a presentation on computers and how they are utilized in a hospital by Richard Flowers, chief medical technologist in the laboratory at Hancock General Hospital. The class had been taking field trips to various agencies in the community.

Rock Tracks

On Sunday, June 15th, British rocker Peter Gabriel transited 55,000 fans, and millions of TV viewers, with his performance at the Amnesty International concert at the Giants Stadium in New Jersey. At the same time, his dance single 'Sledgehammer" became the biggest hit of his career

When Gabriel left Genesis in the 70's, he was replaced by Phil Collims, the group's drummer, as lead vocalist. To accusations that 'Sledgehammer" is an attempt to cash is on Collins' popular style, Gabriel says this: "With regard to Phil - I respect his music and I would like to reach as large an audience as possible, but I strongly refute the suggestion that I am trying to copy him. That pisses me off, because about the time of my third album there were considerable stylistic changes in Phil's music, and I feel that my influence on him hasn't been fairly acknowledged."

Atlantic Records has recently released the album "American Anthem" which is the soundtrack of the Lorimar motion picture of the same name, featuring songs performed by John Parr, Andy Taylor, INXS, Stevie Nicks, Graham Nash, Mr. Mister, and Chris Thompson. Also included are selections from the original score by Alan Silverstri, recently responsible for the scores of "Back To The Future" and Romancing the Stone.

"American Anthem" features two singles which were previously released: "Two Hearts," performed by John Parr, and "Take It Easy," performed by Andy Taylor (Duran Duran, Power Station). Parr, who wrote and produced "Two Hearts," previously hit No. 1 on the national charts with "St. Elmo's Fire." The LP includes three Andy Taylor songs, all written by Taylor and Steve Jones and produced by Roy Thomas Baker.

Bob Geldof who co-founded the Boomtown Rats in his native Ireland in '75 is working on his debut solo album due for release later this year. A major international success, Geldof, along with the Boomtown Rats, hit the top of the charts with songs like "Rat Trap" and "I don't Like Mondays." In 1982, Geldof made his screen debut in the role of Pink in "The Wall," based on the popular Pink Floyd album, and was organizer of the Band Aid, Live, Aid, and Sport Aid fund-raising

JILL JACKSON'S HOLLYWOOD

HOLLYWOOD: "About Last Night" starring Rob Lowe and Demi Moore is about the nearest thing to a porno movie I've seen. Before the credits rolled I counted six unprintable words, during, at least fifteen, and throughout the film it was every other word. How it's not x-rated beats me. Wouldn't it be nice to see those two, beautiful, young people in a picture with a plot good enough to hold up without them running nude and having sex throughout? Matthew Broderick did it in "Ferris Bueller's Day Off." Brecke Shields is more than pleased to have Robert Ellis Miller as her "Brenda Starr" director. If anyone can get a performance out of an actor, it's Miller, who is known as "an actor's director." He's the man who started Kelly McGillis, Sondra Locke, Cicely Tyson, Stacy Keach and more. Paris born designer Marie France concocted the glamorous apparel worn by. Primee's leading ladies in "Under The Cherry Moon." His majesty told Mme. France the film would be released in black and white "to heighten the style and dramatic effect." Armand Assante's latest is "Belizaire the Cajun," filmed in Louisiana by Louisianians in less than one month for under a million dollars. Assante plays a roguish folk healer circa 1859 with Gail Youngs (Robert Duvall's real life wife) as the love interest.

At the meeting Miss Ann Allen, principal, presented a summary of events held throughout the year.

Improvements to the building and grounds, the curriculum, communication, as well as additional school activities were reviewed.

During the ceremony two outgoing school board members, Joseph Gex and Joseph Marochino, were awarded plaques in recognition of their service to the school.

All other members of the board were given certificates signed by Miss Allen and Monsignor McGough, pastor.

ETV Briefs

Lima School, 304 Necaise Ave., Bay "Farmweek" reporters will talk with a group of Wayne County watermelon growers in a program to air at 7:30 p.m., Monday, July 14, on Mississippi ETV. These farmers recently formed their own marketing association and as a result have doubled their income from watermelon growing.

"Farmweek" will also report on a recent extension service survey showing the impressive growth of the catfish industry in the state. They will discuss this in light of the drop in catfish prices in Mississippi. Also included on "Farmweek" will be current farm prices, market analyses, local and national agriculture news, a calendar of upcoming farm-related events. specific advice for farmers and weather forecasts for the coming week. The series is co-produced by Mississippi ETV and the Mississippi Cooperative Extension Service.

AMERICAN LIT

series begins a repeat run at 7:30 p.m., Tuesday, July 15, on the statewide network. Designed for inschool use in American literature classes, the eight weekly interviews with Mississippi writers begin with a talk with Shelby Foote.

In addition to Foote, "PostScripts" features Eudora Welty, Barry Hannah, Margaret Walker, Ellen Douglas, Elizabeth Spencer, Ellen Gilchrist and Willie Morris, each talking about his or her inspirations, influences. experiences, accomplishments and

They also discuss Mississippi's wealth of artists, especially writers, and give their views on why the state has more than its fair share of acclaimed authors, and they give their views on why Mississippians write. Even though all eight authors have their Mississippi heritage in common, they each demonstrate unique, different views of their home state in their writing.
